

KWEST Multi Academy Trust has granted a spectacular experience for children in Norfolk at Cadbury World. In March 2019 the children will be granted funding to go on a once in a lifetime trip.

Alison Hughes and Paul Donkersloot should be awarded a raise due to them offering the most superb trip to local children at St Germans Academy.

The children in the 5/6 class at St Germans (Ladybirds) are studying a new topic called 'It's not Fair' and throughout this topic they are learning about Fair Trade amongst other things. The Ladybirds class expressed a huge interest in visiting Cadbury World in Birmingham. This was so they could learn about how a Fair Trade business is run, how Fair Trade products are made and also being able to have a taste of Fair Trade products.

One of the students at St Germans Academy (Ethan, age 10) excitedly quoted 'KWEST are an amazing Academy Trust as they grant children the money for lifetime experiences that they might not get again!'

The children needed a huge amount of £600 for the coach and £700 to get into Cadbury World; that's a colossal total of £1300. The children are so lucky to have been given the money from the KWEST Multi Academy trust and as Reece (Ladybirds student, age 11) stated 'We are very privileged to be given this opportunity!'

Miss Burrell, the teacher of the St Germans class has said 'We are all small schools with only a few over 100 children each; so to give us this money is a great thing!'

KWEST have done such a lovely thing for these well-mannered children and they deserve to achieve great things due to their generosity.

A child (Jasmine, age 9) made the remark 'I really appreciate the offer from them, they're my heroes!'

KWEST have 5 core values. These are; Capacity, Community, Inclusion, Independence and Excellence. They are astounding. They are giving the children the capacity to learn because they are allowing them to attend a location which will fulfil their learning even further in a fun way. They are making them part of the community because they are giving them the tools they need to learn more about the Fair Trade community. They are feeling 'inclusion' from them because they are letting them go to somewhere where other schools can benefit from as well. They are feeling independent because they can go somewhere else in the United Kingdom to explore due to KWEST giving them their wings to fly. They are also feeling excellence because they are learning to their full ability and expanding their learning in ideal locations elsewhere.

The children are learning about Fair Trade and KWEST are enabling them to visit the biggest

Fair Trade Multinational company in Britain.

Finally, Connor
(Ladybirds student, age
10) exclaimed 'Going to Cadbury's World will be one of the best experiences ever and it is very educational as we will learn life skills – thankyou for letting us go KWEST!'
